NATIONAL EMPLOY THE HANDICAPPED WEEK

Each year the President of the United States issues a proclamation designating the first full week of October as National Employ the Handicapped Week. This year, the week will be observed October 6-12.

To observe the week, most libraries set up displays calling attention to the capabilities of handicapped persons. Displays might be built around the inspiring books which have been written about individuals who have overcome disabilities to become productive members of society. The display might also include some large type books.

The South Carolina State Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped will be happy to work with libraries in planning an appropriate exhibit and providing sample materials and informational brochures. For information, write to the South Carolina State Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, 718 South Edisto Avenue, Columbia, South Carolina 29205.

Printed materials are available from the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped upon request. Address requests to the Committee, U. S. Department of Labor, Washington, D. C. 20210.

The Charleston County Library has scheduled a series of Round Table Book discussions to be held during the month of October and November. The discussion to be held on October 28 will carry a bicentennial theme, featuring a reading of historical poems by South Carolina Poet Laureate Helen von Kolnitz Hyer.

S. C. STATE LIBRARY STAFF MEMBERS ATTEND WORKSHOP, VISIT OHIO STATE LIBRARY

Three staff members of the South Carolina State Library made trips outside the state during August to attend a workshop or to study library operations at the Ohio State Library.

Alice I. Nolte, Field Service Librarian, attended a two-week seminar on Consulting in State and Regional Public Library Systems at Syracuse University, New York, from August 12-23. Major areas that were considered by participants at the workshop included the role of the consultant, ethical problems encountered in consulting, design and planning of workshops, and techniques to be used in evaluation of library services.

On August 27-28, Mary Toll, Documents Librarian, and Lea Walsh, Interlibrary Loan Librarian, visited the Ohio State Library, Columbus, to study library operations. Particular attention was paid to interlibrary loan processes, including the Ohio union catalog and the planned use of the OCLC (Ohio College Library Center) data bank as a source for locational information. The government documents department of the library, which serves both as a regional depository for federal publications and also as the central depository and distribution point for Ohio state documents, was studied. Services to state agencies which take their form in different current awareness programs, workshops, and standard reference services were also examined.

COLLEGE LIBRARY BUILDING COMPLETED

The move into the new library quarters at Presbyterian College, Clinton, began in July as final interior touches were being made. The new $1.6 million James H. Thomason Library opened at the beginning of the college's fall semester on August 23. The library structure which is centrally located on the college's campus contains approximately 45,000 square feet having a book capacity of 175,000 volumes. Construction of the tri-level structure has been underway for the past eighteen months, ground having been broken in January, 1973. The new library is named for James H. Thomason, a retired Laurens County business leader and benefactor of the college.

Upcoming bicentennial events in South Carolina: Two events in September are scheduled which celebrate part of South Carolina's history. (1) Scottish Games and Highland Gathering. Middleton Place Gardens and Plantation Stable Yards, September 21. For information contact: Alan Powell, Middleton Place, Route 4, Charleston, South Carolina 29407. (2) Branchville Raylrode Daze Festival, Branchville, South Carolina. September 27-29. Festival centers around the railroad, part of the oldest line in the United States.

BEAUFORT COUNTY LIBRARY READING CLUB PARTICIPATES IN BEAUFORT WATER FESTIVAL

The Beaufort County Library played an active part in the week-long activities of the Beaufort Water Festival in July. Children enrolled in the American Patriot Reading Club aided in constructing and decorating the library's bookworm boat, "Benjamin Bookworm," which was entered in the novelty boat race. Unfortunately, the boat was lost to strong tidal currents at the outset of the race. On a more successful note, children who comprised the club's tug-of-war team proved victorious in the Water Festival contest. Members of the club attended a picnic with members of the Black Powder Club who demonstrated shooting muzzle-loading rifles and throwing tomahawks. Dressed as book characters, reading club members marched in front of the library's bookmobile in the Water Festival parade. Also during past weeks, reading club members have been treated to a tour of Parris Island historical monuments as well as a cartoon festival presented at the Beaufort County Library.

In addition to the reading club members, one of the Beaufort County Library staff members also distinguished herself during the Water Festival activities. Grace Lovell, Children's Librarian, placed first in the ladies three-mile bicycle race. Miss Lovell also had the dubious distinction of placing second and third in the race as well, due to the fact that she was the only contestant. Refusing to accept the award without running the race, the intrepid, unchallenged contestant completed the course, commenting, "I could only have done it alone."

INTERIOR RENOVATIONS WILL EXPAND JAMES A. ROGERS LIBRARY

The James A. Rogers Library at Francis Marion College will double its capacity and space this year by interior renovations. Renovations will begin in the fall to remove walls from classrooms and offices which have occupied the library's second floor for the past two years. The second level will now be devoted to the original library purposes due to library growth necessitating expansion and the provision of classroom space in new buildings on the college campus. The James A. Rogers Library currently holds over 100,000 volumes and it has seating facilities for 200 students.

GREENVILLE COUNTY LIBRARY OUTREACH PROGRAM DISCUSSED

The Advisory Committee of the Outreach Program of the Greenville County Library met with representatives of the library to discuss long-range plans for the program. Judy Diltz and Charles Gardner, Outreach Coordinators, presented a report of past outreach activities and introduced plans for future action. Long-range plans outlined at the meeting included additional bookmobile stops, service to the Department of Parks and Recreation Neighborhood Centers, services to institutions, work with adult education groups, programs for the hearing-impaired and visually and physically handicapped, and children's programs associated with headstart groups, hospitals, and day care centers, and services to the aged, homebound, and nursing homes.

The Advisory Committee is composed of representatives of governmental, educational, social service, and recreational organizations in the county.

FRIENDS OF THE CHEROKEE COUNTY PUBLIC LIBRARY MARK FIRST YEAR - PLAN FOR SECOND

The Friends of the Cherokee County Public Library, having marked its first anniversary, is actively making plans for its second year. During the past year, the Friends and the library co-sponsored several programs for adults and children. An arm-chair travel film series proved popular last fall. For Children's Book Week, the Friends invited Robert Burch, a nationally-known children's author, who held programs for children and adults. A tea for all public school teachers was held in January to acquaint them with the services of the library. During the spring, the Friends and the library sponsored Sir Kenneth Clark's film series "Civilization" which proved very successful.

Plans are now underway for several activities during the coming year. The Friends plan to offer charter bus tours to various plays and concerts in Charlotte or Greenville. A volunteer program providing library service to the local hospital and the production and sale of note paper featuring sketches of historical points in Cherokee County are also being planned.

The biggest project undertaken by the Friends is the establishment of an author's scholarship fund. The project will encourage the publication of literary works of merit by local authors who may have difficulty in raising the necessary funds to have the book published. Historical works about Gaffney and Cherokee County will be stressed. The scholarship is a loan and must be repaid with the first proceeds from the sale of the book. A goal of $5,000 has been set for the fund, and over $4,600 has already been raised in outright donations.

WILLIAMSBURG COUNTY LIBRARY ESTABLISHES FIRST BRANCH LIBRARY

Residents of Hemingway will have their own library branch in September. A building in Hemingway has been leased for a two-year period. The town of Hemingway has agreed to pay the rent and furnish utilities. The Williamsburg County Delegation is providing funds for the operation of the branch. It is expected that the new Williamsburg County Library branch will be open and operating by early fall.

The Pickens County Library has initiated a circulating collection of dress patterns for its patrons. Acting upon the suggestion of his wife, Jim Swan, director of the library, established the collection from donations by interested citizens.

BEAUFORT COUNTY LIBRARY OPENS READING ROOM IN HEALTH CLINIC

The Beaufort County Library recently established a reading room at the Beaufort-Jasper Comprehensive Health Clinic at Chelsea. The collection at the clinic includes materials for both staff and patients of the clinic and community residents. Children's books and phonograph records are also available, with story hours being scheduled. Library materials can be utilized by patients waiting at the clinic and by persons in the Chelsea community.

LOCAL LIBRARY COOPERATION DISCUSSED AT YORK COUNTY LIBRARY

Librarians from county libraries in Chesterfield, Lancaster, Union, and York, as well as representatives from libraries of the York Technical College, Winthrop College, and the South Carolina State Library met at the York County Library on August 13, 1974, to discuss the Area Reference Resource Center - Metropolitan Libraries Project. A discussion of the library network and cooperation among libraries in the area was the focal point of the meeting. Librarians exchanged information concerning resources available in each library, service and circulation policies, as well as assistance available to other libraries.

CHILDREN'S PUPPET SHOWS PRESENTED BY RICHLAND COUNTY PUBLIC LIBRARY

Puppet shows staged by the Children's Department of the Richland County Public Library have been presented to various children's groups in Richland County. Library staff members presented a puppet show and story time for the hearing impaired under the auspices of a program sponsored by the Columbia City Parks and Recreation Department. Sixty-five day campers at the Latimer Manor housing development viewed a puppet show coordinated by Louise Smith, Community Librarian at the public library.

CHILDREN'S BOOK WEEK

The theme of Children's Book Week to be held November 11-17, 1974, is "Books for All Reasons." The Children's Book Council has made Book Week materials available in separate or kit form. A Book Week kit containing one poster, set of three streamers, one mini-frieze, 100 bookmarks, and one play, is priced at $5.65. For additional information on ordering or individual prices, contact the Children's Book Council, Inc., 175 Fifth Avenue, New York, New York 10010. Orders should be mailed before October 12 to insure delivery prior to Book Week.

A photographic exhibition, "Images Through a Lens," was held at the Colleton County Memorial Library during the month of August. The exhibition was sponsored by the Colleton County Arts Commission and the Art Guild of Walterboro.

LARRY NIX

Contrary to his name, there is no doubt that Larry Nix is more than qualified as the new Director of the Greenville County Library. In addition to receiving a BA degree in English from George Peabody College in Nashville, Tennessee and a Masters in library science from the University of Illinois, he took graduate courses in library science at the University of North Carolina and studied adult education at North Carolina State University in Raleigh. Between 1963-1971 he was a veritable gypsy, working his way up from part-time library clerk (Tennessee) and half-time assistant (Illinois) to second librarian (North Carolina) and, finally, Director of the Clinch-Powell Regional Library Center in Clinton, Tennessee.

Before he became Greenville County's Director in February of this year, Mr. Nix was Associate Director of the Public Library of Charlotte and Mecklenburg County in Charlotte, North Carolina. A former member of the Mecklenburg Library Association and a member of SELA and ALA, he was also Secretary-Treasurer for the Metrolina Library Association and served on the Adult and Young Adult Services Committee of the Public Libraries Section of the North Carolina Library Association. His training at NC State prepared him for membership to the North Carolina Adult Education Association and the Adult Education Association of the U. S. A. He also belonged to the American Society for Public Administration and is presently with the Toastmasters International.

Between 1967 and 1969, Mr. Nix held the rank of Specialist E-5 in the U. S. Army, where he received an Army Commendation Medal, a Vietnam Service Medal, and a Good Conduct Medal. He and his wife, Katherine, make their home in Taylors, South Carolina. Mr. Nix also finds time for reading, photography, public speaking, and fishing.

The ALA Information Science and Automation Division and the American Society for Information Science are sponsoring a two-day institute entitled, "Automated Serials Control-National and International Considerations" at the Atlanta Regency Hyatt House on October 11 and 12, 1974. Some of the topics on the program agenda will cover cataloging considerations, international considerations, MARC serials format, and review of existing serials systems.
